

Course Options Cost Framework

Description of Course Options Variation	Role of Educational Institution	Tuition Amount (to be paid by Resident School District to the Educational Institution)	Other/Notes
Student attends course offered at resident school district in conjunction with Course Options-eligible Institution for Higher Education (IHE) and receives both high school and college credit. District is responsible for delivery of course (instruction, facilities, materials, etc.) and awards high school credits.	IHE reviews and approves high school faculty and course, enrolls student, and awards college credit.	To be based on negotiated agreement between resident school district and IHE, with expectation that the agreement be cost-neutral for both parties.	While a cost neutral agreement is preferred, the resident school district and IHE may negotiate a fee to be paid by the resident school district that covers any additional costs directly attributed to Course Options. Districts and IHEs may negotiate additional tuition and fees to be charged to the student by the IHE if the course taken would result in college credit upon successful completion.
Student attends course at a Course Options-eligible IHE that is offered for both high school and college credit. Course is offered to high school students only .	IHE is responsible for delivery of the course (instruction, facilities, materials, etc.) and awards college credits. Resident school district awards high school credit.	To be based on negotiated agreement between resident school district and IHE.	Districts and IHEs may negotiate additional tuition and fees to be charged to the student by the IHE if the course taken would result in college credit upon successful completion.
Student attends course offered to all eligible students by a Course Options-eligible IHE.	Institution is responsible for delivery of the course (instruction, facilities, materials, etc.), enrolls student, and awards college credits. Course is offered to any eligible student enrolled in the institution.	The cost the resident district will pay to the IHE will be 50% of the tuition the IHE charges for the course, not to exceed 50% of UW-Madison tuition for a course with the same number of credits, plus any fees and/or book costs.	The resident school district and IHE may negotiate a lower fee to cover actual costs. Districts and IHEs may negotiate additional tuition and fees to be charged to the student by the IHE if the course taken would result in college credit upon successful completion.
Student enrolls and attends course offered by another public school district.	Non-resident school district provides all components of the course (instruction, facilities, materials, etc.).	Cost of course or 1/7 of full-time open enrollment amount per credit taken, whichever is less (50% of 1/7 amount for one-half credit course).	Payment cannot exceed actual cost of course. Students and families shall not be required to pay any costs for the course.
Student enrolls and attends course offered by a 2r charter school.	Charter school provides all components of the course (instruction, facilities, materials, etc.).
